Ubidyne adds CSK Venture Capital to second-round funding

Phoenix Business Journal - by Patrick O'Grady

Ubidyne Inc. added another investor to its second round of funding.

The digital radio developer with headquarters in Tempe and Ulm, Germany, announced Tuesday that CSK Venture Capital has been added to its ranks of investors. The company would not release the amount, but said it was added to the $34 million it received when Ubidyne initially closed the funding round in May.

CSK joins Doughty Hanson Technology Ventures as a second-round investor, along with first-round participation from Accel Partners, TVM Capital and BayTech Venture Capital.

"We are extremely pleased CSK Venture Capital has joined our investor group," Ken Hawk, CEO of Ubidyne, said. "CSK has a long history of helping technology startups penetrate the Japanese and Korean markets."

About Ubidyne:

Ubidyne is the global leader in digital antenna embedded radio technology for wireless communications. Ubidyne's standards-agnostic micro-radio technology is integrated with wireless antennas and revolutionizes the economics of mobile communications. These integrated active antenna systems are compatible with current and next generation mobile standards. They eliminate the need for coaxial feeder cables, remote electrical tilt and additional amplifiers on antenna towers and masts. The Ubidyne technology significantly reduces energy consumption while improving radio performance, deployment flexibility, coverage and capacity of mobile communications networks globally.
